

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Such a step to influence the elections by a large corporation should be against the law.

It is scandalous and the FCC should stop this: ask for broadcast of other opinions on the candidates.

US democracy is crumbling in many ways. Such monopolization of the airwaves by large corporations is one main danger to it.
